

Becker's Snack Shack Receives FHLBank Grant In Partnership With Bradford National Bank

“As a rural community bank, we understand how vital small businesses are to a community,” said Michael Ennen, president of Bradford National Bank. “To be able to partner with a great organization like the FHLBank Chicago and provide substantial grants to small businesses is very rewarding. Becker's Snack Shack is a great restaurant in the Irvington Community, and we are honored to be working with owner Mona Becker.”

Bradford National Bank, in partnership with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago (FHLBank Chicago), has awarded a $15,000 Community First® Accelerate Grant to small business Becker's Snack Shack, a restaurant located in Irvington, IL.

Attention Business Owners

Important Information about Beneficial Ownership

Effective January 1, 2024, Federal law — the Corporate Transparency Act (CTA) — requires certain entities, including many small businesses, to report information about the individuals who ultimately own or control them (also known as their “beneficial owners”) to the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN), a bureau of the U.S. Department of the Treasury. A separate regulatory requirement currently requires many financial institutions to also collect beneficial ownership information from certain customers that seek to open accounts as part of Federal customer due diligence requirements.

The CTA’s requirement that entities report information to FinCEN enables FinCEN to supply that information to law enforcement and other government agencies, as well as certain financial institutions. Agencies and institutions authorized to receive this information may then use it for several specified purposes, most significantly combatting money laundering and other illicit activities that involve shell companies. Beneficial ownership collection requirements for financial institutions, in contrast, are primarily intended to ensure that financial institutions know their customers and thus can prevent their institutions from being used to facilitate illicit activity.

For additional information, visit the FinCEN website at fincen.gov/boi.
